Kamei Park is fabled to be the location of Kameyama Castle in the Middle Ages, and was built using the castle remains as park architecture. The elevation from Torikai Inn at the Kamei Park entrance to the summit is approximately 500 meters, making for an overall gentle incline. After enjoying the view from the summit, relaxing your tired feet in the nearby Enmeichaya Foot Bath is a great idea.

Kamei Park is designated by the Tottori Prefecture government as a "Forest for Good Health," and somewhere around sixty thousand wild rhododendron dilatatum flowers blossom all over the park in mid-April. The summit lookout deck provides an expansive view of the Sekigane Hot Spring area cityscape, the Hiruzen Sanza mountain scape, and Mt. Daisen.
