Additionally, rhododendrons are visible around late April. And if you walk a bit more, you can visit Konomi no Sato and enjoy collecting insects like stag beetles among the expanses of nut and berry trees.

This pond is called "Daisen Pond" because Mt. Daisen reflects downwards into it on clear days. Taking the walking path through this area will allow you to enjoy the beauty of each season. Visitors can also rent canoes at the pond and enjoy the expansive magnificence of natural features like Mt. Daisen and Mt. Hiruzen from the water.
